Dear Janet,

I have looked over the page of the galley proof sent to you by the Cyclopedia of American Biography which you enclosed with your letter of November 7th. I have checked on the point you raised concerning the U.N. voting formula and find that the statement contained in the galley proof is quite accurate. The formula was taken by President Roosevelt to the Yalta Conference and it was at Yalta that the political decision and approval was made by President Roosevelt, Winston Churchill, and Joseph Stalin. It, of course, was not formally incorporated into the U.N. charter until later at the San Francisco conference.

I did note, and judge from your marking on the galley proof that you too noticed, that the word "embodies" should, in fact, read "embodied." This typographical error is in the line directly opposite your penciled question-mark.

Faithfully yours,
